DEPRIVED OF DOPE.

220 MIDSHIPMEN FAIL

Annapolis, Mr., Feb. 1.—It was announced on reliable authority here today that 220 midshipmen or about one fourth of the entire membership at the naval academy will be asked to resign soon because of their failure to pass the half yearly examinations. Many midshipmen claim that the examinations were much harder than usual, but this is denied by the instructors.

The number of failures in each class is said to be as follows: First graduating class, 20; second, 60; third, 60; fourth, 80.

The fact that the academic board considers each case gives hope to some of the young men that they will be afforded a further opportunity of remaining in the naval service.

One explanation of the large number of failures is that instructors have been forbidden to indicate in any way to the midshipmen the character of the examination. The court of inquiry, which investigated the scholastic methods of the academy, recommended abolishment of the dope system, as it was called, and an order forbidding the use of any kind of special help followed. Many midshipmen claim that the average youth needs these to pass the examination. Others claim that the midshipmen felt that, on account of the special need of officers, they would be treated more leniently than usual.

A table containing a beautiful cake set with twelve candles was the center of attraction. The guests were all attired in pretty kimono's, fastened with Japanese pins, in the form of fans and parasols until one would think she was being truly entertained in the land of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Westerburg of Glencoe, Idaho, are visiting with her brother, Bishop Olsen, also with her father, L. E. Olsen and her sister, Mrs. Albert Peterson.

The character dance given for the benefit of the Sunday School, was a grand success. A large crowd was present, the majority of them in costume. There were so many different characters represented in such a fine manner, it was hard for the committee to decide which was the best, but Bishop Olsen finally carried off the prize. Nepht Blindup and Abraham Loser furnished music for the occasion.

Bishop Olsen made a business trip to Mink Creek, Idaho, last Tuesday, remaining there several days.

Mr. S. A. Larsen of Station Creek visited with Lewis Ricks for a few days this week.

There are three incubators in the brood house, but he buys the most of his chicks from a firm in California, who makes a specialty of selling day old chicks. Mr. Wood expects to enlarge the plant in the near future.

Heber Olsen and wife have a new interest in River Heights. It is a boy eleven and one half pounds and he expects to help in the beet fields next summer.

State Legislatures Scored At Round-Up

In his address at the Roundup Gov. Spry spoke mainly on the state's resources and development. He urged the farmers to boost for Utah and commended highly the work that is being done by the Agricultural College.

Dr. Elwood Mead of the University of California followed the governor, talking on "Shall We Change Our Government?"

"The organization and procedure of American state legislatures perplex political experts from other countries," he said, "and are a source of anxiety to our own. In other directions our thought and achievement have kept pace with the rest of the world. On the other hand our organization and methods of making laws have not materially changed in a century."

Throughout his address Dr. Mead attacked the American state legislatures and made many comparisons to other countries, especially to Australia and New Zealand which he said, stand foremost among the nations in this conception, because of their short history, and their language, traditions and form of government that resemble ours. He also showed how the states should operate many of the big corporations and thereby do away with monopoly and allow the farmers the same privilege in marketing as the largest concerns enjoy.

CONSERVATION FORCES ARE LINING UP FOR FIGHT

Washington, Jan. 31.—Conservation forces are lining up for a fight on the water power bills as they now stand in the Senate. The chief fight is to be made on the Shields bill for the disposal of water power sites on navigable streams, but some conservationists also are making an attack on the Senate amendments to the Ferris bill for leasing water power sites on the public domain.

A minority of the Senate land committee filed a report today protesting against the bill which the Senate committee substituted for the Ferris bill as it passed the House. At the same time Gifford Pinchot made public an open letter to President Wilson, in which he appealed to the President to use his influence for the bill as it has twice passed the House.

Mr. Pinchot declared the Senate bill would compel the secretary of the interior to grant all the power sites and corporation might ask for and that under its terms a corporation could take any part of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

The Shields bill, Mr. Pinchot declared, would empower the water power interests to condemn any lands, public or private, they chose and was "astutely drawn for the benefit of the water power interests."

OUR FATHERS' FLAG

We are the children of U. S. A. With a flag that waves so true, It tells of liberty, freedom and peace, And its colors are red, white and blue.

Our weary fathers, left their homes, For freedom, in the wild, That they might bring their loved ones Where peace and honor smiled.

But the Indian from his hiding place, His brother fair did slay, And tried with all his power, that he Might drive them far away.

They faced starvation, torture, death, And England showed her claim, To make them pay her taxes, That their money she would gain.

Then came the sad and cruel war, Why should our fathers stand, And be a slave to England, Beneath her ruling hand?

Must they their freedom lose, They strove so hard to gain? Oh, must they now lose all their hopes Of peace to die in vain?

No, brave and true were they, Their rights they must defend, To win the peace and liberty, They'll fight until the end.

Bravely did our fathers fight, To gain the victory true, And now we have a home of peace Left here for me and you.

Should we not praise our fathers, As well as the Stars and Stripes, Yes, we'll sing aloud their praises, And we'll fight for the Red, Blue and White.

—Vera Merkley.

OUR SITUATION AFTER THE PRESENT WAR

"I insist," says ex-Congressman Calder, "that a revision of the Tariff on many commodities where the reduction of the duty has not affected advantageously the price to the consumer, will furnish much of the revenue needed."

And, if anybody could point out where the reduction of the duty in the Democratic Tariff law has affected advantageously the price to the consumer, the Democrats at Washington would be overjoyed. The consumer, as a matter of fact, has not been benefited in price of a single article since that Tariff law went into effect.

Instead, most of the articles on which the duty was reduced have gone up in price. The government has lost so much revenue the leaders of the majority at Washington are at their wits' end to find new taxes. American industry and business have been gravely injured in everything not affected by the European war, which has built up an enormous but purely temporary trade in things that are being destroyed so rapidly.

If Mr. Wilson's temporary salvation, the war, should come to an end before the Republicans are put in power to restore the Tariff, this country would be in a serious condition indeed when facing the sudden cutting off of our export business that is now making things to be used up as fast as they are produced by the processes of destruction abroad.

And make no mistake Europe is going to be a desperate competitor for markets from the time when it becomes necessary to find work for tens of millions of men now supported out of money borrowed by their governments, but themselves producing nothing.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

PROFITABLE SPORT

Representative Bartholdt, of Missouri, tells the story of an old man with a soft, daff look, who sat on a park bench in the sun, with rod and line, as if he were fishing; but the line, with a worm on the hook, dangled over a bed of bright primroses. "Daff!" said a passerby to himself, "Daff! Bughouse! Nice looking old fellow, too. It's a pity."

Then with a gentle smile, the passerby approached the old man and said:

"What are you doing uncle?"

"Fishing sir," answered the old man, solemnly.

"Fishing, eh? Well, uncle, come and have a drink."

The old man shouldered his rod and followed the kindly stranger to the corner saloon. There he engaged himself with a "large glass of dark beer and a good five cent cigar. His host, contemplating him in a friendly, protective way, as he sipped and smoked, said:

"So you were fishing uncle? And how many have you caught this morning?"

The old man blew a cloud of smoke toward the ceiling. Then after a pause, he said:

"You are the seventh, sir."—Philadelphia Bulletin.
